In today's globalized world, learning English has become essential in everyone's life. So nearly all people have been learning this language or have already known it. It is go-to language for business technology, science and even entertainment. That's why, learning not only English language, but also learning other language open doors for education, business, traveling and international relations. By the late of 20th century, the global significance of English language was firmly established. It became a mandatory subject in many schools worldwide with the new teaching methodologies evolving and breaking traditional boundaries. Independent learning of English through self-directed courses became widely accessible to everyone. Nowadays the demand and interest in learning foreign languages, particularly English, have grown so much that individuals ranging from kindergarten children to senior professionals are striving to learn English. This is undoubtedly a positive trend that learning the language not only helps to understand the culture, history and traditions of countries, but also gives opportunities for personal benefits. By the way, learner's ages, interests and duration of learning and also daily routine play a crucial role in this case.

1. Setting a clear goal is useful for everyone who is going to learn any language. "Why do I need to learn it", finding an answer to this question is so effective way to learn, for example some people want to be English teacher like me, some learners like going to abroad. So, the process of learning English requires to identify our real purpose. If students desire to study by heart, it might be easier to do chores.

2. Immersion is a key to learning a language naturally and intuitively. That is way, creating English zone influences significantly, it may be watching English movies, tv shows or you tube videos in English with subtitles and also listening to English podcast or audiobooks during a day.

Immersion forces you to actively participate rather than passively consume information. While you are engaging fully, absolutely you come across challenges, such as interacting in a new language or solving difficult issues. Overcoming these obstacles gives an opportunity you to be reliable by yourself.

3. Strengthen word knowledge. Building a strong vocabulary base is important for every skill, namely speaking, writing, reading and listening also. Someone wants to communicate with foreign people, it requires having enough vocabulary source that can help to show our feeling, emotion and our thinking. It is a crucial thing to say, without words, there is no conversion, no writing, no listening and nothing which is related to language. Moreover, during learning new words, paying attention how to pronounce them is a vital way in the manner of learning. As far as to one of the well-known writer's opinion, Harmer emphasizes that "the first requirement for native speakers is correct pronunciation due to get meaning of words. At the beginning of learning process teachers must focus primarily on learner's pronunciation. Although grammar and vocabulary are significant, they are ineffective, if the speaker's pronunciation is poor.

If speakers can pronounce correctly, native speakers can understand nearly the meaning of words without grammar structure. But people interact with pronunciational mistakes, it is not understandable for everyone, not only for native speaker, but also for new learner.

4. Paying attention to grammar basics is so valuable in order to learn any kind of language due to clarity and understand full sentences. It provides effectively the order of sentences to convey full meaning in the context. In addition to this, learners need to express their feeling, emotion, thinking and opinion. So, using various types of sentences structures and different kinds of words is an essential factor to progress. There are many grammatical rules which influence significantly in the meaning of the context like tenses, word orders, types of words and prepositions. Understanding grammar helps learners to form sentences correctly, to comprehend reading material and also build confidence in speaking and writing.

5. Stability while the process of the learning enhances to be fluent in everyone's life. When we were children, the first time we did not know any words or we did not understand the speech between our parents. As time went by, we learnt little bit, but now we can communicate with each other or we can show easily our feeling to others, in a word, it is called duration. If learners speak regularly in English, it increases speaking level. Creating a study routine like daily vocabulary practice, weekly speaking sessions and also monthly progress reviews improves knowledge. Many students do not stay consistent and patient, as a result there is no progress.

It is vital for learners that focusing on four skills, namely writing, utilizing different apps and tools like BBC Learning English and You Tube Channels which can affect to pick up vocabulary or grammar level. When it comes to one of useful methods in learning English, thinking in English helps to become more fluent and more productive instead of thinking in Uzbek language and translating it. This manner reduces hesitation and influences to speak like a native person.

Conclusion. Although, the process of learning English requires to follow many strategies like memorizing new words, immersing yourself in the language, practicing regularly, students do not satisfy these types of manners. In order to learn English, students need to live, love this language and also learn the culture or tradition of English. By small efforts, there is a progress, however every step take time. The journey to fluency is as rewarding as the destination- stay motivated and enjoy the experience of learning.
