Introduction

In recent years, the field of education has witnessed a significant shift towards online teaching and learning. This transition has been accelerated by technological advancements and the availability of internet access to a larger population. In the realm of foreign language teaching, educators have been exploring the effectiveness of using interactive methods in online instruction. This article aims to investigate the benefits of utilizing interactive methods in the online teaching of foreign languages.

Today, the demand for the study of foreign languages in our country is growing. The creation of effective methods of learning and teaching foreign languages is a requirement of today. First of all, the fact that learning foreign languages begins with preschool education and schools gives children a somewhat favorable and good result, but in my opinion there are several negative aspects. Foreign languages are also taught today in preschool educational organizations. How effective it is to teach a foreign language to a child who is not yet fluent in Uzbek. In my opinion ,anchayin does not provide great benefits. During the internship, a few months and even now we are visiting schools practicing uwhun. Even during the internship,when we enter a foreign language lesson in elementary grades, we observe the behavior of children and their passion for the lesson. Children, who have now stepped into school, are not too patient to sit in class, now we are teaching them a foreign language, ahir among them still has his name both full and fluent.

Nowadays, the online system is gaining popularity in learning and teaching English now. Students who choose to teach English distance instead of regular group classes do not have the constant opportunity to socialize with their peers or classmates (except for conversation groups). This can be useful for speech practice and new acquaintances.[1,6]

In addition to the original purpose of learning English, an important and sometimes decisive factor is the location of the lessons. Sometimes this limits the choice of direction of study. The distance learning process, on the contrary, allows you to no longer worry about where you will be. When choosing English in distance learning, you focus only on the interesting aspects of the language and do not waste time. Online training allows you to be flexible: you no longer have to part with work or study, sacrificing your interests and hobbies to spend an hour or two at the very edge of the city, worrying about getting to class on time. The distance English course is a great opportunity to teach a teacher at a time when you are comfortable and not adapt to other people in the group. Distance English courses it refers to a special learning environment that best suits your needs, such as a private room, educational institution, coffee shop or local gym. You can complete an online course faster than a traditional curriculum. This can be especially useful for students who are used to completing the assignment plan earlier. You no longer need to skip joint lessons and repeat 100 times what others do not understand.[3,23]

The most common method is remote paid English courses with a Skype teacher. Based on the wishes and interests of the student online, Rrep.uz the online school selects the ideal teacher for the student, with the help of which the learning process will be not only effective, but also interesting. Here, the student can choose for himself a Russian-speaking teacher (for example, when learning a language from scratch) and a native language (if the level is above average). In addition, our school offers a variety of courses for all tastes.

Advantages of Online Teaching

Engagement and Motivation. One of the primary advantages of incorporating interactive methods in online language instruction is its ability to engage and motivate learners. Traditional teaching methods often rely heavily on textbooks and lectures, making it challenging for students to remain focused and interested for extended periods. However, interactive online tools, such as gamified language learning platforms, chatbots, and virtual reality simulations, offer a more immersive and engaging experience. These interactive elements promote active participation, which in turn enhances motivation and retention of language skills.

Authentic Language Use. Interactive online methods also provide opportunities for learners to practice and experience authentic language use. Through virtual conversations, group discussions, and simulated real-life scenarios, students can apply their language skills in a practical context. This application of knowledge fosters a deeper understanding of the language and improves fluency. Furthermore, online platforms can connect students with native speakers, enabling them to engage in language exchanges and cultural interactions that were once limited to in-person settings. The exposure to authentic language and cultural experiences enhances their language learning journey.[2,5]

Personalization and Adaptability. Online teaching platforms are highly customizable, allowing educators to tailor the learning experience to individual student needs. Through interactive methods such as adaptive learning algorithms, educators can track the progress and performance of each student, providing personalized feedback and suggesting appropriate learning materials or activities. This adaptability ensures that learners receive instruction at their own strengths, and weaknesses, maximizing the effectiveness of their language learning journey.

Collaboration and Communication. Interactive online methods encourage collaboration and communication among students. Through online group assignments, language exchange activities, and real-time discussions, learners can practice and improve their speaking and writing skills. This collaborative aspect of online language instruction mirrors the communicative nature of language acquisition, allowing students to develop their ability to interact in a foreign language. Additionally, online platforms can facilitate peer-to-peer feedback and self-reflection, promoting a supportive learning community.[4,4]

Conclusion

The effectiveness of interactive methods in online teaching of foreign languages is undeniable. These methods foster engagement, motivation, and authentic language use, enhancing fluency and cultural understanding. Additionally, personalization and adaptability cater to individual learner needs, while collaboration and communication promote social interaction and language acquisition. Educators must embrace these interactive methods to harness the full potential of online language instruction, enriching the learning experiences of students across the globe.
