Introduction: Ilia Malinin was born on December 2, 2003 in Arlington, Virginia. Malinin's acquaintance with ice skating began in childhood. He was interested in sports from a young age, took his first steps on the local ice rinks. His father, in turn, was a person interested in music, which was a source of inspiration for Ilia. Throughout his many training sessions, Ilia strived to succeed with his father's motivation and support.

At a very young age, he faced a major injury, which hindered his career. But these difficulties made him stronger. He continued to prepare to regain his health and prove himself once again. Malinin's flying style is a combination of technical skills and creative expression. It combines complex jump sequences with modern step movements and emotional choreography to give the audience a captivating performance. Personal life Malinin attracts attention with his personal life in addition to his sports activities. He also devotes time to his hobbies, such as listening to music and learning about his interests. Spending time with family and friends gives him motivation and reduces stress. He attributes his success in sports to his family and coaches, who constantly support him.

Misha Ge, full name Misha Aloyzievich Ge, was born on May 17, 1991 in Moscow, Russia. His parents are figure skating coaches, and Misha started skating at an early age due to his interest in sports. From the age of 4, Misha began to learn the art of ice skating, which allowed him to perfectly combine dance and technique at the same time. Family members, especially her mother, Larisa Ge, spent time with her and conducted programs and exercises aimed at creating perfect figures. Misha's coaching style is multifaceted, he teaches young athletes not only the technique of figure skating, but also how to express emotions on stage. In addition to sports, Misha loves music and literature, and this has a positive effect on his creative processes.
