Abstract. The international community has strengthened the main democratic principles and requirements in the field of ensuring human rights and freedoms, and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which served as a political and legal basis for the formation of the entire system of international law related to this field, and the Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan are devoted to the guarantee of human rights.

Key words. Human rights, the Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, attention to people, rule of law, freedom, ensuring human rights, human interests.

According to the Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan, a person, his life, honor, dignity, rights and freedoms are the highest value. Recognition and protection of human rights and freedoms is the main obligation of the state. This principle occupies a central place in the system of constitutional building foundations. Its main feature is that human rights and freedoms are the supreme value of the formation of all other social relations, including state building.

The priority of human rights as a principle of democratic statehood is included in the foundations of the constitutional system of the Republic of Uzbekistan and is integrated with other principles that arise as a result of it, namely separation of powers, ideological and political prejudice, multi-partyism, social justice, self-government of citizens.

It is not for nothing that this year was declared by the President as "the year of human attention and quality education" and important and reasonable proposals were put forward.

In recent years, on the initiative of our President, along with many other subjects, the "Human Rights" training course has been taught in all educational institutions, which helps young people acquire sufficient knowledge and skills about their rights and obligations. After all, only if the population is sufficiently legally literate and legally cultured, human rights can be prevented from being violated and violated by others.

In fact, the head of state has a great contribution in the reforms carried out in the field of human rights and freedoms in our country.

The Presidential Decree No. PQ-46 "On Approval of the National Education Program in the Field of Human Rights in the Republic of Uzbekistan" adopted on February 7, 2023 was an important step towards the implementation of the tasks undertaken by our country in this regard. This shows that the strong position of the head of our country, that "Uzbekistan remains firmly committed to its international obligations in the field of human rights", is in practice.

2021 President Shavkat Mirziyoyev, in his speeches on behalf of Uzbekistan, which participated as a member of the UN Human Rights Council, said that "Ensuring basic human rights and freedoms is the most important part of the reforms in Uzbekistan, the goals of sustainable development are to ensure the rights and legal interests of every person in our country, and It is carried out on the basis of the principle of "not neglecting", who stated the important goals.

Glorifying and honoring a person, ensuring his rights and freedoms in practice is the most important and urgent issue. Therefore, great work is being done in the field of ensuring human rights in our country. Because at the core of the reforms in Uzbekistan is the vital idea that "Human interests are above all else", the fact that Uzbekistan is cooperating with many countries of the world and major international organizations in various fields in this regard is a clear proof of our opinion. In particular, the cooperation relations of our country with the UN are becoming stronger and more active day by day. We all witnessed that President Shavkat Mirziyoyev, in his speech at the 46th session of the UN Human Rights Council held in Geneva, put forward sharp and urgent initiatives aimed at ensuring human interests. It is no exaggeration to say that this historic speech was welcomed by the general public and international experts.

In his speech, the head of our state said that the provision of basic human rights and freedoms is the most important in the ongoing reforms in Uzbekistan, and stated that the goals of sustainable development until 2030 will be implemented based on the principle of "leaving no one behind", which provides for ensuring the rights and legitimate interests of every person in our country. . These are not simple and lofty words, in fact, we all know that glorification of man, expression of his rights and interests, and all-round development have been made into the main idea of our Constitution. The reason is that all countries that respect human rights and dignity are moving towards development today.

In this speech of the President, the deepening of democratic changes in Uzbekistan and the priorities of the Council's activities were highlighted through the following seven issues:

firstly, that the provision of basic human rights and freedoms is the most important in the reforms in Uzbekistan;

secondly, with regard to issues of gender policy, strictly continue the work aimed at radically increasing the role of women in the socio-political life of the country and in the field of business;

thirdly, it is important to pay attention to ensuring the rights of people with special needs.

Touching on all the above issues, the President emphasized that human rights and legal interests are guaranteed at the core of all our reforms, which is one of our main achievements. Also, the adoption of the Children's Ombudsman Law in 2021, i.e. the International Year for the Elimination of Child Labor, is a clear proof of our opinion that it is a truly historic event.

Indeed, in the 21st century, humanity has made great progress in ensuring human rights and freedoms. This can be observed when the UN has become a prestigious international organization, the importance, status and priority of the legal documents adopted by it in the formation of national legal systems are increasing. It is not wrong to say that these international legal documents, conventions and agreements are the main obstacle and protection for inhumane, undemocratic events becoming a global reality.

In his speech, the head of state announced the ratification of the Optional Protocol of the Convention against Torture, and also pointed out that preparations are being made to invite a special rapporteur on torture to Uzbekistan in order to cooperate on these issues.

A person who considers himself a human being, who has even a little love for his country and people in his heart, will not hurt the honor, dignity and reputation of other people, no matter who they are. Hurting someone's tongue, unjustly accusing, insulting, oppressing, oppressing and endangering someone, causing cold relations between two people, avoiding help and support in difficult situations, refusing and cheating, defrauding the house by fraud and theft, in a word in other words, oppressing people, regardless of nationality, religion, is characteristic of people who do not have the virtue of humanity. After all, such vices are strongly condemned in the "Holy Qur'an", and the verse 135 of the "An'am" chapter says: "Undoubtedly, the oppressors will not be saved", which indicates that man is the greatest and dearest creature.

Conclusion

In conclusion, it can be said that the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan needs to improve the activities of law enforcement agencies in order to prevent situations that demean the honor and dignity of people and citizens, to adapt the national legislation to the international standards that Uzbekistan has joined in the field of human rights, to conduct regular monitoring in the field of human rights, to cooperate with international organizations. thoughts on strengthening are important. After all, increasing the legal culture of the population through measures aimed at strictly observing and respecting the protection of human rights is always in our focus.
